Cease and Desist Recommendation from the Fair Trade Commission of Japan

Today, OMRON Corporation received a recommendation to cease and desist from the Fair Trade Commission of Japan for violating Section 3 (unreasonable restraint of trade) of the Antimonopoly Act through its bidding for construction of road traffic signals and other items ordered by the Tokyo Metropolitan Police Department.

We deeply regret that such a recommendation was received, and offer our sincere apologies. We are sorry for any disturbance this may have caused anyone involved.

OMRON Corporation has always aimed to be a company with high ethical standards, and we take this recommendation very seriously. We will strive to ensure even more than before that all directors and all employees strictly comply with the law and thoroughly uphold corporate ethics.
